

Savvy Students Encouraged to Work 'Smart'.

As thousands of youngsters wait for their A Level results this week, figures show graduate debt has dropped for the first time in six years.

But graduates still leave university an average £12,363 in the red according to Natwest with the cost of a degree rising year on year.

Helen Stacey, Director of Smart Recruitment comments, "Instead of borrowing from the bank of Mum and Dad we are seeing a trend of more and more young people taking on jobs to pay towards their courses or their keep, whilst learning valuable life skills. With the number of people finding permanent jobs having increased to a seven year high recently, there is no better time to put yourself forward for work."
